This is how he'll get away with it...

By Troy Torres

There are a few ways CNMI senators aligned with Gov. Ralph Torres will exonerate him from removal from office. Make no mistake, though; he will remain in office until the voters have their say. The passage of the impeachment rules, and how the votes split between Torres supporters and the non-Torres minority in the Senate tells the tale.

Actually, it tells a few tales, or scenarios, if you will.

Let's establish some impeachment jargon before we move forward. According to the impeachment rules, there will be a special committee to which Senate President Jude Hofschneider may refer matters for disposition outside a trial setting. That committee will have a chairman. The de facto chairman to this point has been and is expected to continue to be Tinian Sen. Karl King-Nabors. Mr. Nabors is longtime Torres crony Kimberlyn King Hynds's brother, and a vehement defender of the Torres regime.

The CNMI House of Representatives 'impeached' the governor in January. An impeachment is the political version of a criminal indictment, where a Grand Jury formally charges a defendant with crimes. In this case, there are six political charges handed down by the House to the so-called jury in this matter - the Senate. The nomenclature for these charges is 'articles.' The Senate - the nine-member jury in this case - will convict or acquit the governor on each of six articles of impeachment. If at least six of these nine senators vote to convict the governor on any one of the six articles, the governor will be removed from office.

Vote counting to fagaga the voters

Knowing six votes are needed to convict the governor on any of the six articles, and understanding that three, possibly four, senators may vote to convict the governor on all articles, the five remaining senators may have leeway to take turns voting to convict knowing not enough votes will collect to remove the governor on each article.

For instance, if Senators Edith Deleon Guerrero, Paul Manglona, Justo Quitugua, and Teresita Santos vote to convict the governor on every article, then at least two of the remaining five senators will be needed to convict on any of the six articles. Sen. Vinnie Sablan is Mr. Torres's gubernatorial running mate, and is expected to vote to acquit the governor on all charges. However, three of the four remaining senators face reelection this year, and thus, the wrath of voters who believe their senators should vote to convict the governor and remove him from office. Mr. King-Nabors does not face reelection until 2024.

Those three senators can caucus and decide to each vote for one of the articles of impeachment so that each vote tally reaches a vote of five for conviction, or just one vote short of removal from office. This would allow each of those three senators - Victor Hocog, Francisco Cruz, and Mr. Hofschneider - to tell their voters they in fact attempted to remove the governor from office, but alas, not enough senators agreed with them.

Here are the other possible ways Ralph Torres will be exonerated (notice I don't use the word 'acquitted,' as in some instances, that would not be entirely accurate) based on the stacked rules the Senate passed Thursday:

The King-Nabors committee may move to dismiss all articles

MMMA Act 04

Part II allows a form of pre-trial conference that can result in the dismissal of all articles against the governor without any prosecution or trial happening at all.

Rule 3(b) states, "Before the Articles of Impeachment are presented to the Senate, the Senate President may refer the Articles of Impeachment to a special committee for a preliminary determination on the threshold questions of whether the Articles of Impeachment as presented constitute treason, commission of a felony, corruption, or neglect of duty; and/or satisfy all required elements of a crime, if a crime is alleged. A referral under this Rule must be approved by a majority vote of the Senate. If the Committee determines that the House Impeachment Record is insufficient to sustain all or part of the Articles of Impeachment, it shall submit a report to the entire Senate regarding its conclusions on the portions of the Articles of Impeachment deemed to be deficient or insufficient based on the House Impeachment Record, as supplemented. The entire Senate may then vote to adopt the Committee Report. If the majority of the Senate votes to adopt the Committee Report, then the Articles of Impeachment deemed to be deficient or insufficient shall be dismissed with prejudice."

It is possible Mr. King-Nabors's committee may submit a report to the full Senate declaring all six articles of impeachment as not meeting the so-called constitutional threshold. How they arrive at that conclusion will be subjective; these rules do not define the threshold. If five senators vote to accept the committee report, then all six articles will be dismissed with prejudice. That means the governor will be exonerated of every crime, where he flew first class illegally, stole from the CNMI taxpayers, abused his authority, and ignored a legitimate subpoena. It also means those charges can never be brought before the Senate again.

Dismissal by pro-Torres prosecutor

Let's say the King-Nabors special committee dismisses only half of the articles of impeachment. The pro-Torres Senate has other options at its disposal under the rules to keep Torres in office.

Rule 7 dictates who may serve as impeachment prosecutor, and prevents the House from being represented by a qualified attorney of its choice. The rule states the impeachment prosecutor will be the House speaker. If the speaker, Edmund Villagomez, declines to serve, then the impeachment committee chairman - Vice Speaker Blas Jonathan Attao - must serve as prosecutor. Neither are lawyers. If Mr. Attao declines, "then the Senate President shall select a House member to serve as Impeachment Prosecutor."

Under this scenario, Mr. Hofschneider may simply choose one of the five pro-Torres House members, who voted against his impeachment: Reps. Angel Demapan, Leepan Guerrero, Roy Ada, Joseph Flores, or Patrick San Nicolas.

Before any trial ever happens, one of these members may simply abide by the consistency of their vote in the House and move to dismiss all articles of impeachment against the governor with prejudice. That will kill the impeachment.

Acquittal by technicality

Pro-Torres senators can Pontius Pilate-wash-their-hands of the whole matter if the House Clerk does not submit the full House Impeachment Record to the Senate by close of business two Wednesdays from now. According to Rule 8, the House has 14 days from the passage of the rules to provide the full record, paginated, indexed, and fully transcribed to the Senate. That includes a nearly-impossible full transcription of the hundreds of hours of witness testimony during the impeachment proceedings.

"If the House Impeachment Record is not transmitted to the Senate Clerk within the applicable time frame as extended, then the Senate shall consider the impeachment matter without an impeachment record and the Impeachment Prosecutor shall not be allowed to appear or participate in the Senate proceedings and the Senate hearing in any matter whatsoever. The Articles of Impeachment shall be presented to the Senate for final verdict and judgment in accordance with Rule 26." - Rule 8(d)

This provision of the rules means there will be a vote without evidence or trial on each of the articles of impeachment if the House Impeachment Record is not completed and submitted in two weeks time. Without evidence, in accordance with Rule 5's standard of proof of 'clear and convincing evidence' and there being no evidence upon which to base a decision, senators would be bound to vote 'no' on every article of impeachment.

The governor may strike the evidence against him

Let's say the King-Nabors committee allows some of the articles to proceed to trial, Mr. Villagomez or Mr. Attao agree to prosecute the case, and the House manages the nearly impossible feat of submitting the full and fully transcribed impeachment record within the 14 days. A trial then will be scheduled and commenced..

Prior to the calling of any witnesses, the governor will have the opportunity to get rid of the most damning evidence against him, depriving senators of the so-called

'clear and convincing' evidence against him. Rule 16 states the governor may object to the admission of any evidence against him, and that the Presiding Hearing Officer will single-handedly rule on the motion. The Presiding Hearing Officer will be either Mr. Hofschneider, or a senator he selects to be such powerful officer.

Without the relevant evidence to make an article of impeachment meet the threshold of having clear and convincing evidence to convict, the senators will be forced to vote to acquit the governor.

Acquittal after unfair trial

While the governor will be allowed to be represented by as many high-powered attorneys as he pleases, the House will be forced to prosecute the case without a single lawyer. Its prosecutor - Villagomez, Attao, or any other member of the House - will have no trial experience.

"All motions, objections, requests, or other matters pertaining to procedure, to the Articles of Impeachment, or to the impeachment hearing, including questions with respect to the admissibility of evidence, made orally or in writing by a party shall be addressed to, and decided by, the Presiding Hearing Officer," Rule 23 states.

Without the proper legal training, the House prosecutor will not stand a chance at pleading his or her case by motion, objection, or other procedural pleading. The governor's lawyers, however, always will have the upper hand in this regard. In this way, the pro-Torres senators will be able to make a mockery of the House and tell voters the House was unable to make its case with enough evidence for a proper conviction.

We are kidding ourselves if we hold out any hope this pro-Torres Senate will convict Ralph Torres of any of the articles of impeachment. This matter has been decided before it began. All these three senators facing reelection are doing is creating an environment, where they will be able to justify their votes to exonerate their friend, the governor, from wrongdoing.

The Medical Malpractice Mandatory Arbitration Act

By Danielle M. Baza

On October 31, 2018, Asher Dean Lubofsky died at Guam Memorial Hospital. Asher was admitted the day before, and his condition worsened gradually over night. According to his father, David Lubofsky, in previous statements to Kandit News, his son was never admitted to the ICU despite his deteriorating condition, the nurses never set him up with a breathing tube despite his labored breathing, and a doctor never checked on him through the night.

An investigative report on Asher Dean's death by the U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services secretly published May 3, 2019, confirmed Mr. Lubofsky's statements, and more. Asher Dean is identified in the CMMS report as Patient 6. Mr. Lubofsky constantly asked the nurses on duty for a doctor to see his son, and for his son to be intubated so he could breathe and rest. The nurses, on the order of doctors whom they had called, gave the boy Albuterol and Tylenol for his symptoms.

The political scoreboard:

Our coverage of this issue began:	February 2019
Call to action:	Reform of the MMMA Act
Who can act?:	Senators and the governor
What action has been taken?:	Speaker Therese Terlaje introduced reform legislation - Bill No. 112-36. Senators have yet to vote on it.
Has action led to solution?:	As of March 5, 2022: No.

Mr. Lubofsky reported these events to the Guam Board of Medical Examiners, the Allied Health Board, and the Guam Board of Nurse Examiners in 2019, but to no avail. At the time, there was no public record of what happened. He eventually filed lawsuits in the Superior and District Courts of Guam for the wrongful death of his son.

Over the summer of 2020, Mr. Lubofsky caught a break. GMH was forced to disclose the May 3, 2019 CMMS report, which implicated the nurses, respiratory therapists, and doctors in the death of Asher Dean. The report included summaries of the interviews with the medical providers, including two women who attended to Asher Dean.

Mr. Lubofsky wrote an editorial for Kandit on November 21, 2020 that read:

"Doctors are not accountable in Guam for medical negligence and that creates apathy, the same apathy and lack of accountability that may relate to the abuse of other staff and allows them to think they can get away with it. This does not apply to all doctors of course. I do not mean to cast a net over the whole medical community, but apathy related to a lack of accountability is an inherently dangerous issue within the medical field on Guam due to protective laws at GMH and island wide.

"Did my son die not only by alleged medical negligence with apathetic people who have no accountability and responsibility to their patients, but also due to the abuse of medical nursing staff by doctors that resulted in nurses "freezing in fear" and prevented them from giving the critical care Asher needed as they waited for a doctor to wake up, too intimidated to call again?"

The current Mandatory Medical Malpractice Arbitration Act states no one in Guam can bring a lawsuit against a healthcare provider for medical malpractice unless the grieving party first goes through medical arbitration at the expense of the grieving party. That expense begins at around $40,000 to $60,000 in upfront costs, making arbitration unaffordable for the poor and middle classes. Lubofsky isn't the only grieving party or resident who looks forward to changing the law so that poor and middle class citizens have access to due process through the courts. Others throughout the years have tried to challenge the MMMA Act on the grounds that it violates every citizen's constitutionally protected right to due process.

U.S. District Court Judge Ramona Manglona made it clear, in an order in the Lubofsky case, that if the MMMA Act were to be interpreted by the Guam Supreme Court to force medical arbitration on a grieving party that cannot afford it, then the MMMA Act would certainly violate the Constitution's 14th Amendment.

Shipping

By Danielle M. Baza

If Matson shipping has things its way, the company will again have a shipping monopoly on Guam. And with 95 percent of all consumables imported by sea, a great deal of island costs rely on whether Matson achieves its aim. Its only competitor - APL - is trying to prevent the monopoly from happening. And, on the national stage, more conversation is happening to repeal a federal law that has allowed Matson to control so much of our lives: the so-called Jones Act.

A U.S. Senator from Hawaii has been back-channelling both the Biden and Trump administrations on behalf of a Hawaiian shipping company's interests. If she succeeds in her campaign, the cost of nearly all goods sold in Guam and the Northern Mariana Islands will undoubtedly increase even further.

The CNMI and Guam - already isolated, struggling to get by, and lacking voting representation in Congress - have been the target of U.S. Senator Mazie Hirono's (D-Hawaii) efforts to advance Matson shipping's financial interests in the region. Matson is the Hawaii-based shipping company that once enjoyed a monopoly in Guam and the CNMI before APL joined the market in 2015. It also is a major contributor to Ms. Hirono's political campaigns.

The Biden administration, according to Ms. Hirono's most recent letter, is siding with Matson. "Earlier this year," the senator wrote to U.S. Secretary of Transportation Pete Buttigieg, "the Biden Administration moved to remand the case back to MARAD, stating MARAD had erred in their 2020 approval and just this month the United States District Court for the District of Columbia remanded the APL Saipan matter back to MARAD for reconsideration."

The removal of the APL Saipan from the Guam trade will have a crippling affect on the CNMI's already frazzled economy. Should Matson succeed in ridding the Guam trade of APL altogether, the Mariana Islands surely will face even steeper increases to the cost of living.

Two questions linger from this exposure of Hirono's quiet campaign involving Guam and Saipan: What the hell does she think she's doing getting involved, where she should mind her damn business? And where the hell are the leaders of Guam and the CNMI on such a critical issue?

During its monopoly years, Matson steeply increased its container shipping rates, driving up the cost of living in the Marianas, where more than 90 percent of all consumables are imported. APL stymied the increases, when it entered the market with its ships. Those ships operate between the U.S. mainland and Guam and the NMI under the authority of the Maritime Security Program.

APL late July of 2021 sued Matson over allegations Matson "has waged a campaign of anticompetitive tactics to exclude APL from the markets for container cargo shipping services between the mainland United States and Guam so that Matson can achieve and maintain its containership monopoly."

It is against both federal and local antitrust laws for a company to employ tactics designed to give that company a monopoly in its industry of operation.

"The establishment, maintenance or use of a monopoly, or an attempt or conspiracy to establish a monopoly, of trade or commerce in a relevant market by any person, for the purpose of excluding competition or controlling, fixing, or maintaining prices is unlawful." - §69.20 of the Antitrust Law of Guam

In a lawsuit filed in federal court in Washington, D.C., APL has alleged that Matson has threatened some of its customers that if they ship through APL, Matson will offer lower rates to its customers' competitors.

"Matson actually followed through on its unlawful threats to shippers. APL understands Matson significantly increased rates specifically to its shippers that placed cargo with APL, and Matson refused to promise on-time deliveries for shippers that booked cargo with APL," the APL lawsuit alleges. "Matson's threats and punishment of shippers further disciplined them from doing business with APL, hindering its ability to compete fairly in the U.S./Guam markets."

According to the Guam Antitrust Law (codified at Chapter 69 of the island's criminal code), "A contract, combination, or conspiracy between two (2) or more persons in restraint of, or to monopolize, trade or commerce in a relevant market is unlawful."

§69.15 of the statute also provides: "A contract, agreement, combination or conspiracy which controls or attempts to control the quantity, price or exchange of any article of manufacture, product of the soil or mind or any goods or services in restraint of trade is unlawful... Secretly paying or allowing rebates, refunds, commissions, or unearned discounts, whether in the form of money or otherwise, or secretly extending to certain business consumers special services or privilege, not extended to all business consumers purchasing upon like terms and conditions, to the injury of a competitor and where such payment or allowance tends to destroy competition, is unlawful "

Matson three times has taken the U.S. Maritime Administration to court in Washington, D.C., suing U.S. MarAd to revoke the license it has issued to APL to operate in what is called the Guam trade. The Guam trade involves the shipping lanes that pick up and drop off cargo in Guam, the CNMI, Palau, the Federated States of Micronesia, and the Republic of the Marshall Islands. It is a multimillion-dollar shipping market, which Matson controlled as a monopoly from 2012, when Horizon shipping left Guam, to 2015, when APL entered the market.

The political scoreboard:

Our coverage of this issue began:	May 2019
Call to action:	Stopping a shipping monopoly
Who can act?: general	Senators, the governor, and attorney
What action has been taken?:	These leaders have done nothing
Has action led to solution?:	As of March 5, 2022: No

During Matson's monopoly, the company mercilessly increased the price of shipping to the Guam trade, leaving the average resident of this region too poor to purchase even food without public assistance.

The Office of the Attorney General of Guam has stated its interest in the case, and its outcome. Guam has a local antitrust statute nearly identical to its federal counterpart. The statute grants the attorney general broad powers of enforcement.

When the victim woke up Urumeyang was "throwing items in their bedroom," including a car headlight. The victim was unable to call the police because Urumeyang had taken her cellphone. The next morning the victim woke up and found Urumeyang sleeping in her vehicle which was missing a headlight. The victim tried to ask Urumeyang for her paycheck, which was in the glove compartment of the car but Urumeyang got upset and claimed he threw her things onto the roadway. Urumeyang threatened to kill her and her family, so she immediately asked her daughter to call the cops. Urumeyang then fled with her car. Police found Urumeyang on January 11th and he admitted to having an argument with the victim but said he only took the vehicle so could leave and cool off.

RELEASED FROM

Jason Scott Matsumiya:

CM0061-22

violation of a court order; criminal trespass; harassment

On January 25, 2022, Jason Matsumiya was accused of trespassing the Perez Acres premises. Matsumiya went to his ex-girlfriend's residence and wanted to speak to the victim about getting back together, which she refused to do. When she told Matsumiya to leave, he left and returned minutes later and banged on the door because it was locked. Matsumiya's nine-year-old son opened the door and Matsumiya proceeded to the victim's bedroom and started banging on the door which was also locked. Their 15-year-old son pulled Matsumiya away from the door and Matsumiya left. Matsumiya was ordered to stay away from the victim in a prior family violence case.

Royce Benavente:

assault on a peace officer; family violence

On February 24, 2022, Royce Benavente was accused of throwing rocks to his sister after she refused to give him money. The victim had redness to her hand where the rock had struck her. When police officers arrived, Benavente said he would fk them up if the officers got near him and that if he had it his way he would kill everyone who lived there, referring to his father's house where the alleged incident occurred. Officer Pangelinan also reported that Benavente tried to kick him but missed and said he "was lucky that he was handcuffed." When officers informed Benavente that he was being arrested and transported to the precinct, Benavente asked if there was an octagon ring at the precinct because he wanted to make the officer bleed.

Oscar Guerrero Cruz:

interfering with the reporting of family violence; strangulation; family violence; child abuse

On February 26, 2022, Oscar Cruz was accused of yelling at his girlfriend, "Bh, shut up." Cruz then turned to one of her children and said, "Are you dumb, bh pick up the wood and hold it," instructing the child to pick up a piece of wood so he could cut it with a saw. In fear of getting cut, the child dropped the wood and Cruz said if she did not hold the wood steady he was going to cut her and it would be her fault. When Cruz's girlfriend started to leave, Cruz came into the house and charged at her. The woman's children stepped in to protect their mother and Cruz threw both children to the wall. While holding their 2-year-old daughter, Cruz charged at his girlfriend and started choking her. The victim ran to the bathroom to hide because Cruz said he was going to kill her.
